

Introducing the Men's and Women's Calvin Klein Collection Eyewear for Fall 2012

Featuring modern twists on timeless style, the sunglass collection presents a fresh take on the aviator, crisp reinventions of titanium and zyl combinations, and daring shapes that employ straight brow bars.

While the men's collection pays homage to its retro roots with vintage inspired silhouettes, the women's collection centers on timeless polish and clean lines in an elegant palette of blacks and radiant neutrals.

All of the men's sunglass frames offer polarized lenses, an added benefit, that effectively removes glare and sharpens vision. The brand's pure sophistication and understated elegance remain signature elements of this season's Calvin Klein Collection Eyewear.

Men

CK7340SP. The classic aviator is redesigned with a new look for the sports-minded customer who craves serious style. Crafted with a modern zyl and metal combination, the mixed materials give this frame an intriguing appearance. The daring brow bar and oversized teardrop shape make a bold statement. Available in grey, havana, and walnut.

CK7478SP. A sharp take on the standard navigator style. The arched metal brow bar and angled frame structure denote solid artistry. Slim, lightweight temples add a sporting dimension. Available in black, silver, olive, and navy.

Women

CK7480S. This softened square shape has a timeless simplicity with clean lines and a sleek design. Luminous gradient lens colorations, floating hinge details and slim front-facing rims make this zyl-metal combo a modern classic. Available in gunmetal, tangerine, and blush.

CK7855SP. A contemporary twist on a vintage legend. Rounded tortoise temples give this frame depth while the polarized lens recalls the brand's sportswear heritage. This zyl classic is available in black, whiskey, olive, and ocean.
